Listening to Your Needs

Across the United States, city governments of all sizes are facing the increasingly complex challenge of handling resource constraints in a way that meets citizen expectations for services. At Eide Bailly, we take your questions and concerns seriously and understand each issue is unique to every client. Our government team will work with you to gain a better understanding of the challenges in your local and state environment, and how we can help you operate more efficiently and budget appropriately in order to add value to the constituents of your city.

A Client-Focused Approach to Service

We know that each city has its own unique circumstances, depending on your operating environment. Therefore, no two clients are treated alike. Our service approach is centered on collaborative communication throughout the year, including periodic meetings with your management to ensure you stay informed. Additionally, our partners and senior level professionals are highly accessible throughout the year.

Why Choose Eide Bailly

The governmental sector is one of the largest industries we serve, and we have a dedicated team with industry-specific knowledge you can rely on. Our team members are engaged in the industry and well-positioned in organizations associated with governmental entities. Because our professionals hold various leadership roles in the GFOA and AICPA at both national and local levels, including Government Audit Quality Center members, we are able to provide input into governmental accounting issues. In addition, every team member receives ongoing training to stay current on issues affecting city governments.

When you work with Eide Bailly, you'll work with competent and experienced professionals who understand city governments and are passionate about their work—and your success.
