- Serves clients at all stages of business, both operators and maintenance providers

Real Challenges

The renewable energy industry is tasked with issues of global importance and faced with overwhelming challenges. Renewable energy companies are dealing with concerns about liquidity, sources for additional capital, loan covenant compliance, government funding and legislative support, production, operations and a volatile market—all while looking for ways to increase profitability, gain public support and educate people about the efficiencies of renewable energy. We understand the challenges faced by management and the governing board during the various stages of operations—which includes capitalization of a new facility, start-up and ongoing operations.

Experience that Counts

For the past 15 years, Eide Bailly has served approximately 70 ethanol, biodiesel, wind, solar and bioenergy clients. Our professionals understand the demands of the industry, are in tune with industry concerns and communicate frequently with clients. We currently serve ethanol plants with a combined production capacity of approximately 14 percent of the U.S. ethanol production. Our wind farm clients represent 15 percent of megawatts online in Minnesota, as well as other clients throughout the Midwest. Members of our team are selected for their understanding of the industry and active involvement in industry groups such as Growth Energy, American Coalition for Ethanol and American Wind Energy Association. We frequently present to and provide articles for industry conferences and publications.

Why Choose Eide Bailly

Eide Bailly's clients benefit from our knowledge of operational efficiencies, strategic planning, internal controls, business valuations and cost segregation studies. Our experience allows us to help our clients manage costs, while maintaining margins and adequate sales prices. We pride ourselves on serving as a sounding board for industry issues and continually delivering timely filing of investors' K-1 forms, related tax returns and audit reports. We also assist clients with 1603 grant certification. Our clients value interaction with partners, who serve as their business advisors throughout the year.
